Strengths (including why)

Thorough preparation was clear and you shared what you hoped to help us achieve. The audience (me included) seemed to appreciate the effort you had gone through to plan a valuable experience for us, and this sets the tone for mutual engagement.

Areas for Improvement (including how)

We seemed to run out of time due to too much great stuff to share. Sticking to the key points and embellishing with just a bit of the personal touch limited by a countdown timer for yourself that might have an audible notification it is time to move on to an activity or a new section of the presentation might keep you on track better.

Insight (including significance)

Although the PE crowd is already generally firmly encamped in the growth mindset, we do need to understand more of how others not having that mindset react and can best be helped when the learning environment challenges that mindset.
